Brian Matlock

Current Position: Superintendent / Pipefitting Apprentice Program Instructor
Started with M&D in: 2002 and 2006
Started as: Plumber Helper

Starting out as a helper, Brian Matlock first came to M&D Mechanical at the encouragement of an employee. A long commute to work made it difficult for him to stay with the company and he left to go into residential construction for a short time. He returned to M&D Mechanical in 2006 and began taking steps to move his career forward with the company.

Brian has a lot of drive to do things that will improve him. He entered the pipefitting apprentice program at the North Alabama Craft Training Center and worked hard through the coursework to become a pipefitter. From there, he was promoted to a foreman and then again to a supervisor position. Brian even went through the long, hard process to obtain a medical gas certification, something that few people in the industry in this area have done. This year, Brian has taken on a new role – instructor for the pipefitting apprentice program.

His advice: "Work hard. Pay attention. Listen and ask questions. Keep a positive attitude. I asked a lot of questions and watched the older workers when I was younger."
